and Wicks has almost as sure a pro-position in his game because he is al-ways steady and is capable of playing much lower than his card showed yes-terday. Besides, Holman is reasonably sure of his match and Copp goes into play today with a handicap of four in his favor, which is strong his favor, which is strong odds even for as good a man as Richards, when Copp's experience and knowledge of copp's experience and knowledge of the course are factors.

For all that, the matches today are likely to be much more exciting than yesterday's. The Butte men are undoubtedly at a disadvantage in playing on a strange course and under a sun that has disconcerted them considerably. At times yesterday, it was hat enough to broil chicken and the Butte men complained hitterly of the Butte men complained bitterly of the discomfort, but today they will probably be in better shape for the experience and determined to retrieve the disaster of the first round.

Tintic intends to let every one know that they will be in everything and even now they are "doing things."

The greatest rivalry exists between Jim Crooks and Hans Hassell as to who shall be given the honor of chief muleteer in the chariot races. Every afternoon, when the cares of business do not weigh heavily. Jim Crooks in his special rubber tired ball bearing racing chariot can be seen doing his regular try-out, the course being from his stables on Church street to the Balhinch mine and back. Hans Hassell on the other hand considers that a longer course is necessary to get his mule Katrina into the best of racing trim and gives her a daily spin out to his studfarm at West Tintic and back. Whether this means a revival of those famous fetes where one-half of the guests get champagne and the other half Apollinaris is not plain.
